Guy Lundy Signed to Almighty Entertainment

Almighty Kay Gee introduces R&B album "Extraordinary" in stores this fall.

New York, New York (PRWEB) September 5, 2009 -- Obscured within the musically deprived scene of Phoenix lies the brilliance of a soul, Guy Lundy. Guy Lundy is a fusion of gospel, guffaw voice over hard hitting, stanksoul funk tracks representative of his Philly, New York, and New Jersey upbringing. To the astonishment of fans, his sophisticated sound is distinguished by layered polyrhythm over syncopated beats, full of classic soul remnants with a 2025 outlook.

With this combination of soul stirring chords engulfed by exciting new sounds, Guy has taken R&B to the moon. He has opened for the Nappy Roots, MC Lyte and comedian Charles Walden and has headlined for the Sons of P-Funk. He has also worked with T-Life, who discovered Evelyn "Champagne" King, and Chris Arms, formerly of Pretty Poison. More than a great voice and top-notch musician, Guy is an entertainer in the highest order. His unending wit and sack of dance moves-- he actually danced a stage apart one night-- never allows his audience to take their eyes off of him. After hip hop legend and icon Almighty Kay Gee of the Cold Crush Brothers discovered a mystudio.net video, Guy became the newest recording artist of All Mighty Entertainment in June of 2009. With this new outlet for the much needed refreshment of the R&B world, Guy Lundy begins his legacy.
